The South Continental Committee has been busy compiling a full agenda. There is a Short Course on Monday titled 'How to get and use available resources for water management' followed by the Executive meeting. The Short Course will be an interactive presentation on current internet data and products for water resource management, land management and agriculture producers with presenters from: NRCS, USGS, NWS and Utah State University. Also included will be an opportunity for water managers to identify and discuss tools and products they would like developed. A tour exploring the Utah State Water Lab, Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge and the Golden Spike National Monument is scheduled for April 22.
